

Law & Art: Elizabeth Langer

By Natasha Ewart [Friday, May 18th, 2012]

What are some of the things you expect to see at a law school? Students studying, professors speaking with students, visitors touring the campus, and beautiful art throughout the school. Yes! New York Law School's Broad Student Center includes a gallery space where local artists showcase their work to the entire community. The Law School hosts exhibits throughout the academic year, displaying colorful photographs, paintings, prints, and drawings that bring the walls of the bustling Student Center to life.

The following pictures show some of Elizabeth Langer's works currently on display at NYLS. Langer is quite the talent—she's a painter and a collage and print maker based in New York City, and she's also an attorney. Her exhibit, called Form and Figure, will be on display at NYLS through May 20.

I wouldn't say I'm an art connoisseur, but I think these pieces are absolutely interesting and emotionally evoking, and I'd love to add some of them to my own collection at home. Enjoying where you study and spend large amounts of time is extremely important. If you can be surrounded by beautiful art, there is nothing wrong with that! Thank you, New York Law School, for showcasing innovative artwork throughout the school.

If you're interested in seeing Elizabeth Langer's exhibit, stop by NYLS by May 20. There is also plenty of other art on display throughout the campus. And stay tuned to Sidebar; there is much more art to be seen!

<http://www.nyllsidebar.org/law-art-elizabeth-langer/>