ADDENDUM #1: TEACHING EXPERIENCE

My teaching experience at the college level consists of approximately 10 years (sixteen semesters, three summer sessions) and 14 years at the high school level. I have a passion for teaching that is evident in my enthusiasm, collaborative approach to the classroom, and personal research that I pursue in order to keep myself current on artists and technologies so to better serve my students. I strive to provide a safe, non-toxic studio space that meets Health and Safety requirements, as well as create an environment that is conducive to learning and creating exceptional works. I take every opportunity to combine traditional media with new technologies in my studio classes, like with the introduction of graphics programs such as Adobe Creative Cloud. When teaching, all course information and myself are accessible to students outside of the classroom through email and the use of various online platforms, which I use almost daily to make announcements on projects, post website of amazing artists I come across, and provide other miscellaneous information. During class time, I present frequent slide lectures in order to familiarize my classes with historical and contemporary examples of artwork, artists, and themes relevant to each project. The slide lectures also focus on clarifying project criteria, showing examples of processes, materials, or content. Slide lectures and project introductions are accompanied by in-class demonstrations and technical discussions, which serve to reinforce the student's understanding of techniques and concepts. The assigned projects further compositional skills by incorporating elements and design principles in the guidelines, as well as push their conceptual development and artistic expression with concept-development exercises and class discussions.

ADDENDUM #2: RELATED EXPERIENCE

I have a variety of invaluable work experiences that have allowed me to be an asset to my colleagues and students. While working as the Registrar and Exhibitions Coordinator for the Ewing Gallery of Art & Architecture at The University of Tennessee from 2011-2012, I was required to possess an extremely broad skill set and be able to manage multiple projects while under the pressure of numerous deadlines. I oversaw the day-to-day operation of the gallery, produced the majority of the graphic design and PR for the gallery, worked closely with faculty, staff, and students from various disciplines, managed a large permanent collection of artworks dating to the 16th century, did the layout and installed exhibitions, coordinated and worked closely with artists from around the world, and served as a resource for the UT and broader community. (I also learned how to drive a 26' Penske truck through New York City, including China Town!) The knowledge that I acquired from this position is applicable, "real-world" experience that will only serve to benefit my students and their goals.

From the spring of 2009 through the summer of 2010, I worked as the Technical Studio Assistant at Belmont University for a year and a half, in addition to my responsibilities teaching printmaking and foundation courses. My main responsibilities, though there were numerous other duties, were assisting with the technical needs of studios and labs in 2-D and 3-D areas, serving as the coordinator of health and safety rules, policies and procedures for the Department of Art, updating all Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS) annually, ensuring compliance with EPA health and safety standards in all studios, creating and maintaining an inventory of equipment and supplies for all media, and working closely with the Department of Art Chair and the Office Manager. I received EPA/Hazmat certification in order to perform these duties to the upmost of my abilities and knowledge, lending myself as an invaluable resource to the department. This position catered to my some of my greatest strengths, including excellent communication skills, working and interacting collegially with a diverse group of students, faculty, and staff, exceptional organization skills, and my personal knowledge and experience in a wide variety of disciplines, both 2D and 3D. In the fall of 2009, I was appointment to the Belmont University's Environmental Management Systems team (one of four members) as the Department of Art's representative. This team was, and continues to be, responsible for identifying, implementing, and maintaining campus-wide training, policies, and procedures to ensure EPA compliance, setting goals for areas that generate waste and/or use hazardous materials, and creating and enacting plans to reduce and/or remove those environmental concerns. This position required further training in ISO 14001 Environmental Management Systems through the Tennessee Independent College and University Association.

In the past, I have worked as an Exhibitions Coordinator and Gallery Assistant in the Rudolph E. Lee Gallery at Clemson University during the spring of 2006. My experiences in the gallery included preparing condition reports, unpacking, installing, taking down, repacking and shipping visiting shows, such as the James Van Der Zee photography exhibition, Portrait of the Harlem Renaissance, which was part of the Langston Hughes Project. I collaborated with the Provost's Office in the re-framing and remounting a collection of drawings and prints on loan from Clemson University's collection for the Provost's Office, preparing condition reports for all of them. I served as the Exhibitions Coordinator for the Southeastern Printmaking Invitational exhibition, designing postcards, advertisements, and announcements, writing a reviews, serving as contact for all participants, and giving gallery talks Lee Gallery patrons, one about process and technique which included a tour of Clemson's printmaking facilities and the other touching on history, concepts of certain pieces, and technique. I also planned and served at special gallery events and fundraisers, such as the Celebration of the Center for Visual Arts, where I assisted with the auction and sales.

From 2006-2008, I worked as a Production Potter for Robert Alewine, the owner of Alewine Pottery, in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. The shop is a member of the Arts and Crafts Community, which embraces the unique cultural and artistic heritage of the Appalachian Mountains in Tennessee and North Carolina. At the shop, my skills as a potter were on display to visitors who watched me work and asked questions about my craft and construction of various forms, all of which were for sale in the shop. Being able to concentrate on my job and demonstrations, as well as answer questions, prepped me for similar situations within the classroom where I must analyze all of the motions I do and effectively explain them to students so that they can duplicate the process on their own. And lastly, during my senior year in undergrad, I worked as an Intern at YeeHaw Industries in Knoxville, Tennessee under owners Kevin Bradley and Julie Belcher. YeeHaw is a letterpress shop that has played a crucial role in the recent revival of hand-printed posters and other sundry items, bringing the historic art form to mainstream. I quickly learned how to operate and maintain both automatic and manual letterpresses, along with typesetting and graphic design skills required for the layout of posters, and assisted with the orders of customers worldwide. The experience at Yee Haw provided me with invaluable design knowledge and an applicable skill set.

ADDENDUM #3: EDUCATIONAL TRAVEL

As an artist who seeks inspiration and a person who has an insatiable thirst for knowledge, I devote a portion of my year to educational travel, whether regional or international, and strongly encourage my students to do the same. I have started a travel abroad program at Morristown East High School in 2018 where every two-years students have the opportunity to travel to another country to experience the culture, architecture, and heritage of its inhabitants. Minus the COVID years of 2020-2022, I have organized a trip abroad and grown interest from just 15 travelers my first tour to almost 60 travelers in 2025! I have taken students, staff, and community members to seven countries and counting. Our next trip is planned for Summer 2027 to Southern Spain and Portugal for 13 days. I customize these tours, working closely with my EF Tours consultants, to ensure the experience is one to remember for a lifetime!

Personally, I have traveled to 15 countries and 34 states, I am fortunate that my parents deemed it necessary to expose my brother and myself to cultural and historical experiences from a young age, a tradition that I have continued. As a result, I have amassed a number of memorable and educational experiences. Some of these include a cross-country journey with my family following the Lewis and Clark trail to our final destination of Rapid City, South Dakota. Along the way, we explored Mandan villages, the cities of Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati, various state and national parks, and the cultural and historic heritage that is unique to the American Midwest. In addition to a prior visit to Mexico with my family, I was able to go on a school-sponsored trip to Mexico to explore Mayan ruins at Chichén Itzá, Tulum, Uxmal, and other sites, immersing us in the culture of the Yucatan region for two weeks. I've also spent time in Belize on an environmentally based visit, focusing on lessening the impact of our carbon footprint through the use of recycling, conservation, and use of locally available resources.

Besides trips that are focused on history and various cultures, I've also taken numerous trips that are centered on exploration of art and architecture. I've made a few trips to New York City and the numerous museums, like MoMA, MET, Guggenheim, and Whitney, as well as taken a Soho gallery district tour and experienced performances like the Blue Man Group. I've made five separate, week-long trips to the west coast and Los Angeles, CA to visit family, but also immerse myself in emerging trends in art through exposure to exhibitions at small galleries and large museums, like Museum of Contemporary Art, and view historically crucial works at both the Getty and the LA County Museum of Art. I devoted a week in Washington, DC to touring all the galleries and museums that I could possibly attend, and spent a few days in Boston, MA, Baltimore, MD, San Francisco, CA, and Memphis, TN where I visited a few museums and galleries, as well as took in the sites of the cities' historic pasts. And of course, I have explored my more local museums and galleries, such as the Knoxville Museum of Art, TN, High Museum in Atlanta, GA, the Frist in Nashville, TN, and the Hunter Museum in Chattanooga, TN, to name a few.

Exposure to contemporary and historical works is crucial to my role as an educator and artist. Placing myself and my work within the context of art history through continuous exposure to past and present artists and movements is imperative to my ability to effectively teach students of their own role and position within the realm of art history. These journeys keep me current on contemporary themes in art, as well as in my own field of printmaking, plus they further my conceptual research and development. Besides using travel to keep current and view historically invaluable works, travel is a great way to explore the similarities and differences between foreign cultures and our own American lifestyle. Experiencing the vibrant civilizations, cuisine, and ethnicity of different countries expands my world-view and knowledge, further lending me as an invaluable resource to my students.
