This recent body of paintings, an assemblage and a site-specific installation show a cross-section of works by artist, Jennifer Omaitz. This is the first major show where Omaitz is building a body of work that is both 2D and 3D for this specific space.

Omaitz brings together ideas of architecture, geometry, painterly abstraction and site specificity to this current collection of work.

While her paintings often rely on a constructed viewpoint to interior and exterior spaces, these are balanced by the installation. Spaces both real and imagined; dualities, boundaries, and new experiences become compounded authentic experience. Energy from both practices reveal a depth of investigation for ongoing interrelationships between order and chaos as they fluctuate between environment and dimension.
