

Born and raised in Boston, Rosemary Taylor is a painter living and working between NYC and Boston. She received her MFA from Brooklyn College and her BFA at Massachusetts College of Art. In 2021, Rosemary was awarded an ApexArt Fellowship for the inaugural NYC Local Residency program. Additionally, Ms Taylor has been awarded the Joan Mitchell MFA Award in 2007 and was a 2017 Bronx Museum Artist in the Marketplace Fellow. She has exhibited extensively, including a solo exhibition Best Behavior at Kinescope Gallery in NYC in the fall of 2019, as well as Aljira Contemporary Art Center, The Bronx Museum of the Arts, CUE Art Foundation, Smack Mellon, Like the Spice, and Trestle Gallery. She has lectured at Brooklyn College, Tufts University, and Jamaica Center for Arts & Learning. She is currently an Adjunct Assistant Professor at LaGuardia Community College and a teaching artist in the Guggenheim Museum's Learning Through Art Program.