

A woman is walking through a shallow pool of water, holding a clothesline. She is wearing a shiny, crinkled, silver-colored dress that reflects light, and black high-heeled shoes. The dress is draped over the clothesline, which is held taut by her hands. The background shows a corrugated metal fence and a clear blue sky. The water reflects the woman and the dress.

Rising Tides

Floating Museum
on the Barge

Rising Tides

The Hall Art and Technology Foundation

June 8 2024 - June 8 2025

Floating Museum on the Barge

2517 Blanding Ave, Alameda, CA 94501

hallartandtechnologyfoundation@gmail.com
(510) 788-1883

Introduction

Rising Tides is the inaugural exhibition of the Hall Art and Technology Foundation located at the Floating Museum on the Barge at 2517 Blanding Ave, in Alameda, CA. The exhibition includes more than twenty artists in a sampling of paintings and sculpture with a curatorial interest in contemporary culture. The artwork responds to concerns about the environment, living through a pandemic, political upheaval, ongoing war, and more.

THE EXPECTATION OF A RISING TIDE is a hopeful notion, promising that no matter how bleak things look in the moment, if one just holds on long enough, eventually things will turn around...

- Jeremy Dean

Julia Couzens
Off The Grid, 2024; Paint, rope, yarn, fabric on canvas; 40 × 30 × 2 inches